2024 FREIGHT & WAREHOUSING GUIDELINES

COMMUNICATION

The most important guideline for working with Myers for freight and warehousing is that we receive clear and accurate information from the customer. If we can't reach you to get our questions answered, or if you send us inaccurate or incomplete information, we can't provide good service.

ADVANCED NOTICE

We will let you know a deadline by which we need to receive the details for freight or storage scheduled for a given date. We ask that you respect the deadline we set. As a rule of thumb, we need at least 24 hours' notice in order to schedule pickup, delivery, receiving, or staging.

PACKAGING

Everything we receive must be packed in boxes that will survive basic handling and transportation. This means the packaging must be able to handle the weight of the product without the bottom falling out. The packaging can't be overflowing, open at the top, or too flimsy to protect the product. If the packaging can't get wet, please let us know and we will do our best, though our trucks and cold storage are wet, humid environments.

LABELING

Every box or pallet we receive must have a clear label that includes the name of the origin, the date of Myers receiving, and the name of the destination. Any shipment of less than 25 cases must include a label on every box, given that the product will likely be loaded onto a mixed pallet at our warehouse.

PALLETIZATION

Everything we receive must be palletized on a wrapped pallet, and must be stable enough for general handling. The pallet and wrap must be provided by the customer. If product is loaded onto our trucks or arrives at our warehouse and requires repalletization (due to a broken pallet, a lack of wrap, poor pallet loading, etc.), we will charge a handling fee of $50 per pallet.

VOLUME & WEIGHT

We require an exact number of boxes or pallets that we will be handling, as well as the total weight of the product. This information is required at the time the service is scheduled. This information enables us 1) to charge the accurate rate, 2) to reserve the appropriate amount of space and weight capacity on our trucks, and 3) to check the box/pallet count to ensure completion.

RECEIVING, STAGING, & DELIVERY DETAILS

We require a contact name and a contact's phone number for any companies delivering to Myers, for any companies picking up from Myers, and for any location where we are sending our trucks. For those locations where we are sending our trucks, we also require an exact address and daily hours of operation. We require this information at the time that freight or warehousing services are scheduled.
